The Role

As a Business Analyst, you must be eager to discover and solve client problems. You must also be highly skilled in gleaning the most relevant and useful insights from analysis and use those insights to influence decisions made by Kuvora and our clients. Additionally, you should be adept at juggling multiple high-stakes engagements simultaneously in a fast-paced, rapidly changing internal and external environment.

We aim to help clients capture and analyze the most relevant and useful data to drive business insights and growth. Our Business Analysts ensure that we deliver on building sound data-driven solutions for clients. As a Business Analyst, your work is used by Kuvora and clients to make strategic company decisions. Working on multiple projects at a time, you are focused on the details while finding creative ways to take on big picture challenges.

As a core member of our practice, you'll lead individual projects to transform clients' business strategy, human resources, operations, sales and marketing as well as customer experience. You'll provide senior management with insightful recommendations, planning and reporting support.

Primary Qualifications

- Bachelor's degree or equivalent practical experience.
- 1-3 years of work experience involving data analysis.
- Good communication skills; ability to simplify and present complex analytical concepts to an executive audience.
- Solutions and client service-oriented, with an emphasis on creativity and diligence.
- Self-driven with experience in independently managing complex projects.
- Experience with Data Visualization tools and proficiency in all MS Office applications with advanced Excel spreadsheet skills.

Responsibilities

- Support development of standard and customized operational reports across measures.
- Provide data support for Kuvora clients, team members and other internal resources as needed.
- Work effectively with internal/external resources to define analytical objectives/data requirements, obtain data and perform in-depth analyses to achieve a defined business objective.
- Work with the project team to formulate robust, actionable recommendations for clients and distill the essence of technical work to audiences of all levels and across multiple functional areas.
- Navigate complex situations and influence across multiple product areas by leveraging leadership acumen.
- Develop a deep understanding of client objectives and the implications of your recommendations.
- Contribute to the development of analytical frameworks, tools, and skills at Kuvora.

If you meet the requirements and would like to apply, send us your CV/resume.
